Also recognised that the presence of refugees can present opportunities for local development that can benefit both refugee populations and host communities.

Comprehensive and durable solutions

16. Recommended the implementation of durable solutions for refugees, either through their voluntary, safe and dignified repatriation, their resettlement to third countries, their local integration in the respective host countries, or through other local solutions. Agreed that this requires greater political commitment, regional and international cooperation, and responsibility sharing. This is in accordance to International Refugee Law, including the African Union Convention Governing the specific aspects of the refugee problems in Africa (1969) and applicable relevant national laws and policies.

17. Highlighted the need to consult with refugees to ensure that durable solutions pursued are inclusive and voluntary in nature.

20. Highlighted that voluntary return remains the preferred solution in the majority of refugee situations. In this regard, acknowledged the ongoing efforts and new commitments to establish Tripartite Commissions with the support of UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). Committed to respecting the voluntary nature of these returns and to invest in long-term efforts to ensure sustainable and dignified re-integration of returnees taking account of the needs of both returnees and of the communities to which they return.

21. Encouraged Member States to enhance their cooperation in pursuit resettlement options within the region to ease the pressure on countries, which host a large number of refugees, in line with the OAU Convention Governing the Specific Problems of Refugees (Art. 2). Refugees. Encouraged traditional resettlement countries to consider increasing their annual resettlement allocations.

22. Acknowledged that many cases of protracted refugees, as defined by UNHCR, may never be able to return to their countries of origin or be resettled. Further noted that many refugees were born in host countries. Recognized that for these cases local integration is a viable alternative, when coupled with financial support and investment. Commended the concrete steps taken by Member States in the Great Lakes region to enable local integration and encouraged other Member States to consider and pursue similar efforts.

23. Emphasized that successful local integration requires legal stay arrangements, freedom of movement of refugees on the national territory in conformity with the law of the host country, and inclusion of refugees in national services and systems such as education, health care, social welfare and protection services, community policing, and land management.

Recognizing that socio-economic inclusion of refugees does not presume but can contribute to local integration as a durable solution, recommended the development and financing, with the support of partners, of local socio-economic inclusion plans benefiting both refugee and host communities in fulfilment of the SDGs and the AU 2063 Agenda. Highlighted that socio-economic inclusion needs to go hand in hand with efforts to promote peaceful co-existence targeting both communities, and with action aimed at preventing and addressing environmental degradation in refugee-hosting areas.
